

Invocation to Consciousness Explorers

I take my turn at the wheel of the Exploring Consciousness Bus in full knowingness that we are each our own authentic light being with an inbuilt mission to evolve, learn and uncover who we truly are. I acknowledge that this is not a bus ride for everyone this lifetime. Some might just want to sit this one out. There is no judgement in this.

I find joy and inspiration that we are more than we 've been taught we are. Layers of conditioning and projections from the system ,unaware parents and society have limited the ways we see and think about ourselves. Our perceptions of ourselves are based on the narrow dogmas and the relentless, dull, uninspired, droning, self-esteem-lowering, rhetoric of the global media machine that we are somehow continually inadequate and powerless. This warped and misleading narrative has been designed to keep us from our true selves and mask our natural potency.

To those Consciousness explorers who see beyond this : let's make it irrelevant to our journey and out-create the limiting life choices that stifle the very essence of who we are. We are all free-willed, co-creating sovereign beings of choice. This is the baseline for exploring consciousness. Recognising many unseen worlds and realms are layered over our reality. Recognising we are free enough to explore these in any way we choose that does no harm to any sentient kind and does not tread on anyones journey.

So let's leave the rusty, broken-down buses of an old service on the scrapheap of mediocrity . We've long outgrown the need for a self serving system that makes choices for us in our unawareness. It's passengers are travel sick with its aggressive driving . Its outdated mode of transport has too many miles on the clock. It has no ability to change gear, the engine's whining and the batteries are flat. How long are we going to sit waiting for the so called smartest guys in the room to decide our travel plans and the price of the tickets ?

The time has come for a new fleet of consciousness explorer buses where heart -spaced awareness, self-sovereignty and courage is your ticket! A ride that will carry us to the stars and beyond!

So we say these words to the past, present and future of all that there is. We will not bury our heads in the sand or blindly fall into the trap that love and light alone will make us great again. Consciousness explorers know that beyond love and light is the inner work. The attention to and healing of inner traumas . The self healing of triggers. Nor do we jump onto every conspiracy bandwagon or system infiltrated and co opted protest movement that diverts and distracts us from our own wonderful journey of discovery.

We make a conscious choice to expand our awareness of all there is, was and will be. Often there will be more questions than answers and we accept that Great Mystery will never be solved yet find joy in the process!

Consciousness explorers: let's find the beauty and delight of the journey itself. An endless quest to discover more forms and colours of light, coupled with the exquisiteness of self-discovery, self-healing and self-knowledge. We recognise the bus ride of change can be bumpy – it is sometimes an uphill struggle with a smoking engine and at other times a smooth downhill coast in high gear. A weave. A drift across all sweeping bends in all dimensions, timestreams, galaxies and universes. A never-ending bus tour that is fueled by belief, an unlimited point of view, sacred neutrality, sovereignty, and emanating joy! Finding new dream streams and exploring those created by our ancestors who long ago filled in the pot-holes and tore down the stop signs so that we can speed unchallenged through new eras of light, chasing rainbows and carrying messages of peace!

And as our galactic bus happily chugs on , the sun behind us is setting on an old way of doing things, leaving behind the inharmonious and damaging ways of the past. A new dawn holds its breath softly waiting for more to jump on and ask for new road maps, new routes, new journeys, new destinations , new ways of living in harmony with the earth. A more comfortable and fun ride.

Meanwhile the system tries to put the old bus routes back into service with tired old buses disguised with new livery as it attempts to maintain the dying status quo.

And still the new dawn waits to see if we will use our free willed choices to make ourselves great again....

So all aboard consciousness explorers! Destination unknown! But the views will be breathtaking. The scenery unrivaled. A never-ending journey of discovery where finally - you - get to choose your role in the ride of your life.

Aho

- Written by Laura Massey